Turn Web Form Fills Into Intelligence-rich Leads

Many marketing departments tend to use 'gated content' as a means of gathering prospect data and generating leads from web form fills. Typically a web form sits on top of thought leadership collateral such as whitepapers or survey results, but can also be a gateway for event or webinar registrations. Whatever the gate is designed for, its outcome is usually the same - to gather company and contact details to populate a CRM or marketing database for sales follow up.

The challenge is that fake or inaccurate details can be entered which results in databases being filled with poor intelligence, which leads to wasted sales efforts.

PureData is the answer to clean and intelligent B2B marketing data. The service eliminates 'mickey mouse' form fills (including B2C domains) to avoid compliance issues and injects only the most pure and accurate B2B data to your CRM.

PureData turns basic, dirty data into intelligent, clean data. It adds infrastructure intelligence to new accounts, to create intelligence rich leads for personalised, targeted telemarketing or emarketing.
